

---

A Learning group is a cohort of students and staff who stay together through a length of time and primarily interact with one and other. Learning groups can be a single class, a group of classes, or a group of students who share courses (secondary). They can also include a wide variety of staff, but are consistent in their makeup. Learning groups allow for schools to maintain a safe and controlled environment, as well as allow for safe social interactions within the group.

Being in a Learning group means respecting each other by follow he

What happens when two Learning groups need to interact